ECT in Late Life Depression

October 14, 2015
9 to 11 a.m.
Course Code: T301

Presenters:
LalithKumar K. Solai, MD
Asst. Professor of Psychiatry
Service Chief
Geriatric Psychiatry Service,
Medical Director, ECT Services
Univ. of Pgh Medical Center

Program Description:
ECT is the gold standard of treatment in depression. ECT in Late-Life Depression, though very effective, has some unique challenges and issues. We illustrate some of these challenges and demonstrate how the current state of treatment deals with such issues effectively. We will present an overview of some the newer treatment modalities that are being brought to the ECT service.

Educational Objectives:
At the conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:
• Describe the current role of ECT in managing treatment resistant depression
• Explain the role of ECT in managing depression in frail elderly
• Describe complications that can arise during ECT in frail elderly

Target Audience:
This is an introductory program for all psychiatrists, psychologists, therapists, clinicians, service coordinators, residential providers, rehabilitation counselors, peer counselors, and other professionals who work with individuals with depression and related psychotic disorders.
